ADRIAN IN AZURE

Adrian Arundell has been appointed managing director of Azure Capital following a meeting of directors of the Perth corporate advisory house.

He succeeds Azure

co-founder Geoff Rasmussen, who died from cancer 10 days ago. Arundell, who joined Azure in 2011 after 17 years at KPMG, including partner-in-charge of its Perth merger and acquisitions team, had been acting as managing director for the past few months.

“While I’m not a patch on Geoff’s capabilities I’m very much hoping to at least harness his enthusiasm and energy,” Arundell said. “While we continue to work through this sad time we are committed to looking optimistically ahead, making sure to recognise the delivery of good work, enjoying each other’s company and embracing the challenge of adding value to our clients.”
